ASAP of Anderson Receives Grants from Cardinal Health Foundation to Help Fight the Opioid Epidemic in Anderson County

Clinton, TN, July 2018— ASAP of Anderson is pleased to announce that it has received $82,318 from two Cardinal Health Foundation's Generation Rx grants. One grant is for Prescription Drug Misuse Prevention Education for Youth, and the other is for Best Practices in Pain Medication Use. ASAP of Anderson plans are two-fold, (1) to allocate these grant funds to bring Pharmacists and pharmacy students into middle and high school classrooms to teach the Generation Rx curriculum and (2) partner with Methodist Medical Center to support Continuing Medical Education (CME) Trainings for health providers and increase patient engagement through production of a web-based application for treatment and support.

"These grants will support our efforts to reduce opioid misuse in Anderson County. We are thrilled to collaborate with partners across the country to develop solutions to this multidimensional problem," said Stephanie Strutner, Executive Director at ASAP of Anderson.

ASAP of Anderson is one of more than 40 organizations across Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia to receive a prevention education grant from the Cardinal Health Foundation, and one of 15 organizations to receive the Best Practices in Pain Medication Use grant. As part of Cardinal Health's Opioid Action Program, the Prescription Drug Misuse Prevention Education for Youth grants are designed to expand medication safety education for thousands of students in K-12 schools and universities, using Generation Rx educational materials, and the Best Practices in Pain Medication Use grants are designed to support healthcare organizations work with their prescribers to reduce opioid prescriptions, find alternatives to opioid medication for pain management, and better engage their patients – with the ultimate goal of better patient outcomes.

"All of the organizations selected for funding share our goal of turning the tide on the opioid epidemic," said Jessie Cannon, Vice President of Community Relations at Cardinal Health. "Ultimately, we expect our grantees to learn from each other—and we will learn from them. As they develop best practices, our goal is to spread this work throughout the country, and foster solutions to this complex public health crisis."

To learn more about ASAP of Anderson's ongoing efforts to fight the opioid epidemic, please visit our website at www.ASAPofAnderson.org, and follow ASAPofAnderson on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter.

Good News: Big Clinch River Cleanup Collections Are Falling

After six years of concerted effort, the hundreds of volunteers who've labored during the annual Big Clinch River Cleanups hosted by the Clinch River Chapter of Trout Unlimited are beginning to see some results.

They're not finding as much trash in and along the river between Norris Dam and the Highway 61 bridge.

Rusty Hallett of Norris, chairman of this year's cleanup, says 2,000 pounds of trash including 60 tires were pulled from the river and its banks in the sixth Big Cleanup on July 22—less litter and fewer tires than last year. "Maybe we are making some progress!"

The communitywide cleanup has been organized each July since 2013 by the Clinch River Chapter; a grant from the Tennessee Valley Authority covers costs including the day's opening breakfast at the Museum of Appalachia.

Some statistics from the cleanups follow:

- * In 2013, the inaugural year, 78 volunteers collected 70 tires and two pickup loads of trash.
- * In 2014, 105 volunteers gathered 257 tires, 45 bags of trash and two pickup loads of metal.
- * In 2015, though the river was very muddy, 106 volunteers managed to find 70 tires plus 89 bags of trash and 1,600 pounds of metal.
- * In 2016, on a viciously hot day, 100 volunteers pulled in 106 tires plus 72 bags of trash and 1,000 pounds of metal.
- * In 2017, 107 volunteers collected nearly 100 tires, 71 bags of trash and 2,000 pounds of other junk.
- * In 2018, although heavy rain the night before had kept some registered volunteers home, 89 workers found more than 2,000 pounds of trash including 60 tires.

So far, the cleanups have concentrated on the part of Clinch River tailwater that's most heavily used by the public—between the dam and the Peach Orchard boat ramp. As the quantity of tires and trash in that section continues to decline, the area of focus can be expanded to include more areas downstream.

In addition to TVA, sponsors of the 2018 Big Cleanup included Anderson County government (solid waste department and the mayor's office); area ham radio operators; Clinch River Brewing; Holm Construction; Keep Anderson County Beautiful; Museum of Appalachia; Steve and Kathy Stout; and Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency.

The Clinch River Chapter works hands-on to ensure the health of the Clinch River tailwater. Big Cleanup supports two of the chapter's central goals: protecting and enhancing the biological health of the tailwater and its watershed, and raising public awareness of the river's economic and ecological significance.
